

Philip Gibson, Assistant Professor, University of the Incarnate Word

Panel Discussion: What Are the Educational Priorities for Future Financial Planners?

Philip Gibson is Assistant Professor of Finance at the University of the Incarnate Word in San Antonio, Texas. A native of Jamaica, Philip graduated summa cum laude from Prairie View A & M University. He then went to Texas Tech University where he received his PhD degree in Personal Financial Planning in 2012.

At the UIW, he teaches a variety of courses including Money and Capital Markets, International Finance, Investment Planning, Principles of Financial Management, and Personal Financial Planning. Among his research interests are mutual fund performance, asset management, and investment advisor relationship with households. He is an active member of the Financial Management Association and the Financial Planning Association.